MACC Libraries are excited to announce that wireless internet hotspots are available for students to check out at the Ankeny, Boone, Carroll, Newton, Urban and West Campus Libraries. These hotspots will provide access to wireless internet anywhere in the United States.

The wireless hotspots can be used to browse the internet, check email, and stream videos. Any wireless enabled device, like laptops, phones, and tablets, can be connected to the hotspot.

The project was piloted by The Ankeny Campus Library in April and, due to the enormous success, has been expanded to the other campus libraries as well.

“Our hotspots have become very popular among the Boone Students,” said Christine Whitney, Boone campus librarian. “They are a great option for students who have disrupted service over a weekend or need to study in a place that has no wi-fi. They are really easy to use and provide a reliable connection.”

To check out a hotspot students need to go to their campus library with their DMACC OneCard and ask to check out a hotspot. Students will need to read and review the DMACC Technology Use Policy as well as read and sign DMACC Libraries Hotspot Policies. Hotspots check out for one week and may renew for an additional week. If you have any questions stop by your campus library and ask!

New Titles Guide

You can browse the new items added to the Library by visiting our [New Titles] page, or by clicking the "New books in the Library" link on our [homepage]. Once you’re there, you’ll find the new additions in fiction and nonfiction, children’s books, and Leisure videos, including DVD and Blu-Ray.
Spotlight on:

New Resource:
The New York Times

DMACC students, staff, and faculty now have free access to the New York Times. The New York Times database gives users the current edition and a searchable database going back to 1851.

To create your New York Times account just click here and use your DMACC e-mail address when signing up. The subscription will be good for one year. After a year you will be asked to re-create an account again. You can also subscribe to free newsletters that fit your interests. Once your account is active you can simply log in on or off campus at the New York Times website.

Library Orientation

Librarians will work with instructors to identify learning outcomes and can tailor the session to the assignment or course. Topics covered may include: library overview, finding library materials, article databases and electronic resources, evaluating information, and Noodle Tools.

Library Orientation can be scheduled by contacting your campus librarians.
Please visit our page.

Featured Resource: Study Room Reservation

Study Rooms and Collaboration Rooms can be reserved! Click the Ankeny Study Room link on our website to schedule a reservation. All reservations must be made 24 hours in advance but can be made up to three weeks before the room is needed. All rooms reserve for two hours. Same day walk-ins are always welcome. If you have any questions stop by the Service Desk.

All study rooms have outlets and wifi. Four large study rooms have a white board and fit up to six people. Five smaller study rooms can seat one to two people comfortably. All four collaboration rooms have a white board and a 50 inch monitor where students can share screens from their personal laptop, tablet, or phone.
The Fine Print is edited by Zachary Lowe, with assistance and contributions from all Library staff. If you have any questions or comments, or if there is something you would like to see added to The Fine Print, please let us know.
