Subway settles in at Courter Center

By Ethan Lyle
Staff Writer

An addition to the Courter Center here in Boone since fall 2014 has been receiving some support as well as some criticism. This school year, a Subway was built into the previous café.

Student Brian Berg shared what he thought about the new food option. “I eat at Subway every day that I'm on campus. I've always been a fan of Subway and I love that it's here on campus now,” stated Berg. Berg said he wished there were more of a variety. “Although I do like Subway’s healthier choices.”

No matter your criticism or support of the fast food chain, Subway’s success on campus is apparent to anyone who walks by. They’re so busy that there is rarely a time in the day where you don’t have to stand in line.

Boone campus’s previous café had more food options so, naturally, many people wondered why DMACC decided to make a change.

Tom Lee, Boone campus’ Provost, explained what had happened to the Campus Café. “We were having to supplement the café’s contract and we were losing money each month. Also, sales were going down,” stated Lee.

Lee said it seemed that people had stopped eating on campus and a change had to be made. Still, students may be curious as to why the college had chosen Subway out of dozens of other possible chains. Lee answered, “Subway was interested, and offered to do the renovations and set-up at no cost to the college. We also receive a portion of the sales. Bringing in a second chain would not be feasible to either company as it would cut sales of each one. One of them would eventually go under.”

Lee explained further, “Subway also has a diverse menu with many healthy options. It is quality food and a known product. They have exceeded their and my expectations for sales. We are very pleased with the success of the restaurant.”

Midterm of semester approaching fast

Midterm is right around the corner—on March 9.

Academic experts advise students to prepare themselves for midterm exams and to finish out the rest of the semester strong. “Students should follow the ‘study cycle’ method,” recommends Ann Kiesel, the Academic Achievement Center Director.

The study cycle method is studying 30 minutes a day on each subject so the information becomes long term. In Kiesel’s opinion students study too passively. She advises students to study more actively by making the information they are studying into a song, creating flashcards, or using other hands-on tools.

Students often cram for exams. To avoid this, students should consider using Kiesel’s recommendation of the study cycle method, and remember the 2 to 1 theory. This theory is that for every credit a student has they should study 2 hours a week.

An example of this would be if a student is in psychology, a 3 credit course, then they should study 6 hours each week. This also makes the information they are being taught long term and will prepare them for an exam later on.

For upcoming midterm exams students may go to their advisors for advice, the Writing Center, or the Academic Achievement Center (AAC). The AAC’s hours are 8 a.m.-8 PM Monday-Thursday and 8 AM-3 PM on Friday.

They offer free tutoring in math, chemistry, and physics. Also, the AAC offers writing, reading, and study strategies at any time during the hours they are open.

The Writing Center is located in Room 170. The Writing Center hours are M-F 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. 1-3 p.m. The Center is a helpful resource for students working on any type of paper. Writing Center staff will go through the paper with you, helping to correct any errors, and making recommendations to improve the paper, etc.

For students who need help before midterm can visit any of these resources during their hours. Groups can meet in the AAC to work on assignments/projects and can receive help from the staff members.
Income tax help on campus

Free income tax help will continue through April 10 each Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the DMACC Boone Campus. DMACC has been offering this service since 2008. DMACC accounting students who have been certified by the Internal Revenue Service will help prepare federal and Iowa individual income tax returns for qualified residents. Accounting students process and file approximately 150 federal and state income tax returns.

This service, called the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program, offers free tax assistance to those with low-to-modest incomes (less than $53,000 in annual personal income). VITA is particularly interested in identifying those taxpayers who are eligible for earned income tax credits (EITC), which is a refundable tax credit to those who are low wage earners.

All returns will be prepared on-site at the DMACC Boone Campus by trained and certified DMACC student volunteers using software provided by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Each return will be prepared by the site coordinator and, after approval and signature of the taxpayer, will be filed electronically with the IRS and the Iowa Department of Revenue. There is no cost to eligible taxpayers for this service.

Persons interested in receiving this service should bring their W-2 forms, interest statements from banks (1099 forms), copies of last year’s (2013) federal and Iowa tax returns, Forms 1095-A, B, C or F (Affordable Health Care Statements) and social security cards for all family members. Any other pertinent information regarding personal income and expenses for tax year 2014 should be included.

Individuals may call 515-433-5029 to schedule an appointment. Parking is available on the north side of the building, and people may enter through the northeast doorway. There will be no fee tax help offered on February 20 or March 20.

Help stock campus pantry

As the semester begins, please consider helping restock the campus food pantry. Current needs include:

- Canned chicken
- Spaghetti sauce
- Canned fruit/Dried fruit
- Applesauce
- Rice
- Peanut butter
- Jam/jelly
- Dried beans
- Oatmeal/Hot cereal mix/
- Boxed cereal
- Bread/Muffin mix
- Oils (vegetable, olive, etc.)
- Toilet paper
- Bath soap and shampoo

Please drop off donations to Erin Newman, Room 124 on the Boone Campus or Jane Martin's office (room 122). All donations are greatly appreciated. The food pantry is available to any student who might need assistance. If a student has a more significant need for food/resources than a visit to our campus food pantry can assist, please contact Erin Neumann, eanue-mann@dmacc.edu.

Writing Center open

Writing Center consultants are available to help with any writing assignment, during any part of the writing process. With their experience in different types of writing (technical to creative writing) and a broad range of life experience (journalism, firefighting, novel writing, Hawaiian culture, literature, and veterans affairs), you’re sure to find someone that “gets you.” Stop by any time during our hours. No appointments are necessary for this free service.

For more information, contact Krystal Herin, WCG coordinator, kherin@dmacc.edu. Or visit http://go.dmacc.edu/boone-writingcenter.

Hours:
Boone Campus: Room 170, Monday-Friday from 9 a.m.-12:00 p.m. and 1:00 p.m.-3:00 p.m.
Hunziker Center (Look for signs for our location.) Monday-Thursday 4:30-6 p.m.

Phi Theta Kappa

Phi Theta Kappa is the International Honor Society for two-year colleges. PTK will host several informational meetings on the Boone campus. Students are invited to attend to find out more about joining PTK. For more information, contact Nancy Woods, naswoods@dmacc.edu, 515-433-5061, or Stacy Amリング, slan@dmacc.edu, 515-433-5089.

Honors seeks applicants

gram is seeking highly motivated students to apply for honors. There are openings for current DMACC students who want to challenge themselves and graduate from the Honors Program. If you have completed one college-level English and one college-level math class or are currently enrolled, you have completed a minimum of nine (9) college credits and fewer than fifty (50) credits at the end of the summer semester you are applying for, you are eligible to become a DMACC Honors Student.

To read more about Honors and submit an application to dmacc.edu/honors and get started on your way to a rewarding, challenging educational opportunity.

Student publication

One of DMACC’s Summer 2014 REU (Research Experiences for Undergraduates) students, Myra James, recently had the results of her summer investigatory research published along with three other researchers; the research has been published in Advanced Healthcare Materials (2015). Professor Nancy Woods said Myra is thrilled. “It’s a wonderful testament to the excellence and dedication that our students demonstrate through these summer research programs.” James’ article can be found at http://web.me.istate.edu/hashemi/Publishations.htm. Her article is #21, “Microfluidic Organ-on-a-Chip Technology for Advancement of Drug Development and Toxicology.” The article is 71 pages. Congratulations to Myra. Congratulations to the summer REU placement program that DMACC promotes.

Childcare and Transportation help

A program called Iowa New Choices offers assistance with childcare and transportation for qualifying single parents and displaced homemakers (separated, divorced, widowed or spouse disabled.) For information, contact, Erin Neumann, Room 124, eanue@dmacc.edu. Or call 515-433-5037.

Netherlands contest

As part of DMACC’s celebration of the Netherlands during the 2014-2015 academic year, there is a contest in which each of three persons will win two tickets to the Netherlands Grand Dinner on Thursday, April 23, 2015.

Go to the Netherlands Year site for details.

Writing Center Workshop

Join us in the Writing Center next week for a writing workshop—Ways to Get Started. Consultant Bethany Sweeney will discuss ways to generate ideas and organize your information for your next assignment. The interactive workshop is also a great way to meet other students working on writing assignments.

DMACC student Ethan Lyle traveled to Haiti several times to teach English but returned to the United States with many lessons of his own.

“I wanted to go to Haiti to make a real difference and to really experience what it was like to live in Haiti,” says Ethan who really experienced what it was like to make a real difference and to see things from a different point of view.

He hopes to go back to Haiti for a longer period of time.

Ethan visited Haiti six times since his sophomore year in high school in 2011. He went with his church on a missionary trip. He stayed in Haiti for three months in 2013 from September until November. He was given the opportunity to teach classrooms of students English by a missionary organization called Global Ministries.

Along with being a teacher, Ethan was also the physical education and sports director for all ages at the school.

Occasionally Ethan traveled with the American missionary teams that did work at several construction and medical sites around Port-au-Prince (Haiti’s capital city).

Ethan lived in Port-au-Prince. Global Ministries paid for his rent and vehicle. Donations and his church supplemented the rest. He did not get paid.

Ethan explains the living conditions as being very poor. “Running water, electricity, and general safety were a daily struggle,” Ethan says.

He talks of these struggles and explained some days his electricity would only be on for a few hours a day and other times it wouldn’t be on for a few days in a row.

He was told not to go outside alone, so he was escorted by another Haitian in a vehicle.

Ethan talked about the days he did not have to work when he would go to the beach or a nice hotel because these places were secure with armed guards making it a safe area.

Ethan returned home due to conflicts in and between Global Ministries and CONASPEH (the Haitian run partner organization in Haiti).

“Global Ministries and I decided my time was up and it was time to return home for good.”

Ethan enjoyed Haiti, which is why he decided to go for a longer period of time.

Now Ethan is back in the United States attending DMACC, then transferring to Iowa State. He hopes to go back to Haiti again whether it is long term or short.

“After spending time in another country, it is hard not to want to go back. I have friends and memories in Haiti and I hope to see them again and make some new memories.”

DMACC student Ethan Lyle has traveled to Haiti several times on mission trips. While there, he taught English and physical education. Ethan is also a reporter on staff at the Banner News.

Director: ‘Every film alters fact.’

(TNS) Long before the Oscar-nominated “Selma” was championed as the first major motion picture about the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., another film chronicled the civil rights leader from Selma, Ala. to Montgomery.

“Selma, Lord, Selma” was a made-for-TV movie by Walt Disney Pictures. Originally broadcast in 1999, the docudrama was an adaptation of a memoir by Shey- ann Webb-Christburg, a 58-year-old activist who grew up in Selma and now is a member of the local civil rights council.

“Selma, Lord, Selma” was directed by Charles Burnett, who was born in 1944 in Montgomery, Ala. Burnett, a seminarian volunteer for the civil rights movement, was one of the worst people he knew. “Selma, Lord, Selma” was about the life of King and his work in Selma.

“Selma, Lord, Selma” was a turning point in the civil rights movement. It was the first major motion picture about the civil rights leader from Selma. The film brought to the screen the story of King and his work in Selma.

The film continues highlighting the events leading up to the infamous “Bloody Sunday” on March 7, 1965, when King was struck down by state troopers while leading a march for voting rights. King was struck down by state troopers while leading a march for voting rights. King was later struck down by state troopers while leading a march for voting rights.

Men win in OT thriller

The DMACC Bears (22-4) went against the Spartans from Southwest Iowa Community College (18-9) Feb. 14 for their second conference matchup game in Creston and won 83-78 in quite the fashion in an overtime game.

“We knew they weren’t going to let us blow them out again,” said Bears point guard Marquet Newsome from Normal, Ill. “We were prepared for their best effort out there, and that’s what we got.”

The last time these two teams met there was a 50 point spread in the Bears’ favor. The Bears came out firing right away, which led to an early 15 point lead in the first half. But soon after the Spartans caught fire and limited the first half to only a 7 point lead by the Bears.

“By the end of the half, we looked like a totally different team out there. That may have been some of the worst basketball that we have played all year,” stated redshirt Tate Larsen from Des Moines, Iowa.

About halfway through the second half the Spartans found a way to limit the game to be a one possession game, trailing only by 3 points. A set of three pointers by the Spartans later gave them a 6 point lead during the game with only 40 seconds left to play. DMACC Bears guard Trey Sampson of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, but a very clutch 3 point basket to limit the Spartans lead to just 3 with 12 seconds left to play. After the shot the Bears fouled to put the Spartans on the line. After a missed free-throw, DMACC’s Aarias Austin threw a pass to Sampson for a 3 point basket to tie the game as regulation expired.

Overtime started by a hard fast break dunk by Bears forward Jamar Hurdle, which seemed to give the Bears some more momentum. Soon after Hurdle’s dunk, Austin followed up with a 3 point basket to give the Bears a 5 point advantage. The Bears never looked back from there. After this game, DMACC was 8-1 in conference play. They are set to play the Tritons of Iowa Central Feb. 21 for another conference matchup in Fort Dodge, IA.

Baseball team improves to 3-3

The DMACC baseball team ran its record to 3-3 with two victories in a three-game series against Barton County Community College (BCCC) February 20 and 21 at Great Bend, Kan.

The two teams split a pair of games Feb. 20. DMACC took the opener, 5-4, and dropped the nightcap, 5-1. The Bears won the only game on Feb. 21, 5-0.

Sophomore Anthony Mros of Coon Rapids, Minn., and freshmen Brad Maharow of Rochester, Minn., and Eric Weisbrod of Racine, Wis., had two hits apiece to lead the Bears past BCCC in the Feb 20 opener. DMACC led all the way, scoring a pair of runs in the first and one run each in the second, fourth and fifth innings. BCCC tallied one run in the second and three in the sixth inning of the seven-inning game.

Softball begins season in Texas

The DMACC softball team began its 2015 season Feb. 20-21 with a five-game series in Fort Worth, Texas.

DMACC is coming off a 2014 season that saw the Bears compile a 47-12 record and a third-place finish in the National Junior College Athletic Conference (NJCAA) at 22-6 and won the NJCAA Region XI championship. The Bears will begin 2015 with a No. 7 national ranking in NJCAA Division II.

Women win 83-77 at ICCC

Freshman London Vais of Adair, Ill., scored a career-high 31 points to lead the Des Moines Area Community College (DMACC) women’s basketball team to an 83-77 win over Iowa Central Community College (ICCC) February 21 at Fort Dodge.

Freshman Kiana Peterson of Madrid came away with 15 points, all on three-point baskets, and sophomore Latasha Harmon of Milwaukee, Wis., had 13 as the Bears improved to 18-11 for the season and leveled their Iowa Community College Athletic Conference (ICCACC) record at 6-6.

Men beat ICCC, 71-56

Sophomore Jon Faqua of Maywood, Ill., scored a career-high 31 points to lead the Des Moines Area Community College (DMACC) men’s basketball team to a 71-56 win over Iowa Central Community College (ICCC) February 21 at Fort Dodge.

Freshman Paris Collins of San Antonio, Texas, also had 15 points for the Bears, who improved to 23-4 overall and 9-1 in the Iowa Community College Athletic Conference (ICCACC) with their sixth consecutive victory. The win also avenged DMACC’s only conference loss of the season.

Can feminism and chivalry coexist?

I don't know about you, but I'm really tired of it cold outside! It's so cold my fingers get stiff just reading this. I'm not sure if this is really going to change for a while, but I'm looking forward to warmer days. Stay bundled up my friends!

From what I hear, we are in for even more snow this week and week-end. Stay bundled up my friends!

It's reached that moment in the evening. He reaches out. I'm getting nervous. Then, just like that, he opened the door. I know all of the tensions because the chance has passed and he has allowed me to succumb to his gesture as a gentleman. This has happened on almost every date I've been on, which has raised the question. Where can chivalry and feminism coexist? Now before you pull out your pitchforks and torches, let's break down the definitions.

According to Dictionary.com, chivalry is “the sum of the ideal qualifications of a knight, including courteous behavior, valor, and dexterity in arms.” Now, I'm not expecting my date to do all this, but it makes for a nice chivalrous gesture, doesn’t it? When showing that they care. On the other hand, if I make a dinner for my man at home, I expect him to clean up after himself (not just the dishes, but the house too). This is the standard that I expect and I think that's just as important in a relationship.

In conclusion, I’m a firm believer that chivalry and feminism can coexist. As long as couples communicate about their expectations in the relationship and are able to depict the levels of respect, no sexist wars will spark.

Southern colleges still wrestle with racist pasts

Brown University, for example, is named for John Brown, a slave owner. It was the renaming of a building that didn't mean that I'm falling in a housewife stereotype, it means that I enjoy cooking and am showing that I appreciate him.

The “rewriting history” argument doesn't work for Charles Tillman, a Clemson football player who sat on the committee in his view, things like the bulldog mascot, the statue, or the fact that there was once a building called “Varda-Elliot Hall, or the nearby Confederate cemetery. They say he belongs in a place whose purpose is expression, a non-commerciative. “We’re not trying to erase the past but don’t try to make me feel that I’m the only one. When the

But often in the South, that problematic history is interwoven with the community and identity. In the case of the University of Mississippi, it is the slave age that gave birth to the nickname ‘Ole Miss.”

Slavery and the era of segregation were always a part of the culture of the university, ” Ross said. “On the plantation, slaves referred to the plantation owner’s wife as ‘Ole Miss’ and the daughter as ‘Ole Missy’.

The external report addressed this question, too, saying the school should consider the school’s implications. University Chancellor Dan Jones ultimately decided to change the name of the state and the university, though it did not explicitly call for a name change.

For students who know the history, the name can send a hurtful message. A black Clemson student named Edith Dunlap told the Greenville News that if she saw the building on her campus in “a slap in the face.”

Still, for many schools, effacing history is a problematic choice. Clemson issued a statement last week, saying that its board will not change the name. “We believe that other, more meaningful, initiatives should be implemented that will have more of an impact on the diversity of our campus than this symbolic gesture,” the statement said.

Debates of this kind have been simmering for several years. Earlier this month, students at the University of North Carolina's flagship campus in Chapel Hill protesting to change the name of Saunders Hall, a history building named for William Saunders, a Confederate colonel and later leader in the Ku Klux Klan. In 2010, the University of Texas approved changing the name of a dormitory from Simkins (another blanken) to Creekside.

In each of these situations, the central question has focused on where the line is between acknowledging the past and glorifying it. It is impossible to rename building that has a connection to white supremacy or the opposition of black people. Thomas Clemson, for whom Clemson University is named, was a slave owner. So was George Washington.

In their statement, Clemson’s trustees acknowledged that changing the name, saying “every great institution is built by imperfect craftsmen,” and that the university cannot undo its past. “Stone by stone they add to the foundation so that over many, many generations we get a variety of symbols that they care. On the other as for feminism, Dictionary.

of Dictionary.com says feminism is “the document of why aren’t we educating folks about the female body. As for feminism,

One Drop of Love, will be at ISU’s Great Hall on March 1. Produced by Ben Affleck and Matt Damon, the show has been getting great reviews, and I will definitely be attending.

Francine Faraday dies and leaves her entire estate to her longtime companion H.P. Manly. While the loyal members of Francine’s staff are delighted, her money-hungry relatives are furious. Though the will is iron-clad, the relatives find that they can inherit the fortune if H.P. dies of “natural” causes. As the family plots H.P.’s demise, the staff schemes to save him, resulting in counter-plots and mixed-up romances aplenty.

Directed by DMACC Drama Dept. Professor Kay Mueller.
